KS RIGHT TO PRIVACY IS OVER-BLOWN ISSUE...

There has been quite a lot of sand kicked up over the years about how much the employers, police and public have a right to know about people with whom they may be involved in one way or another. Probably the loudest complaints come from folks being considered for employment who are expected to pass a polygraph, or lie detector test. It has always been our notion that folks who have nothing to hide should accommodate law men, prospective employers and in the case of the public, their employees in Government or to welcome the chance to let folks know what particular kind of hair pins they really are.

Natchery, there will be some violations of the feelings of those interviewed. There is no doubt that some kind of legal guidelines should be established to keep interviewees from being interviewed.

TSCRA Marks 100 Years Of Service To Cattlemen comparable commissions within that state.

Although a century separates the first brand inspectors from today's elite force, their duties have remained much the same through time. During calendar year 1982, for instance, TSCRA's present inspector force developed 196 theft cases, primarily involving cattle theft. During the same year, the inspectors recovered property worth $1,142,014.95—an average of $3,128.81 of ranch property recovered each day. "Our inspector force remains one of the major thrusts of our Association," TSCRA President Seelgeon said during the dedication. "That's why we place such emphasis on hiring inspectors of unquestioned integrity. We think we have an excellent force today—men who are faithful and loyal to the cowman's needs as they continue to combat cattle rustling and stem the tide of cattle theft."

Seelgeon also paid tribute to the past and present members of the Burnett family for their many philanthropic gestures to the cattle industry of the United States. "This is a family that has unselfishly given innumerable contributions to our Association since its beginning," Seelgeon said.

The patriarch of the family, S.B. (Burk) Burnett, was one of the 40 original founders of TSCRA at Graham, Texas, in 1876. Although he had heavy business responsibilities both at the Four Sixes Ranch and in Fort Worth, he served as treasurer for the Association for two decades. Many times he kept the fledgling Association solvent by paying inspector salaries out of his own pocket.
His son, Thomas Loyd Burnett, was a staunch supporter of the Association and its goals for most of the early part of the 20th century.
Tom Burnett's daughter, the late Anne Burnett Tandy, and her daughter, Mrs. Anne Windfohr Sowell, in 1979 personally contributed the funds for the land on which the present TSCRA Foundation building stands.

Mrs. Sowell and her daughter, Anne Windfohr Phillips, continue to present "The Burk Burnett" award to the TSCRA member who has made the most significant contribution to the Association since the beginning of the year.
The Anne Burnett and Charles Tandy Foundation to the TSCRA Foundation and the entire Southwestern cattle industry.

TSCRA Secretary-General Morgan Don C. King of Fort Worth, who was an inspector in the early days of the Association, also presented historical books and old photographs as well as the inspector's badge, spurs, saddle, hat and clothes hat scene accurate for its time. The artist Jim Reno of Kerrville was commissioned to sculpt the bronze of a suggestion of Mrs. Sowell.

Farm Failures Seen Declining

The number of farmers going out of business in the area served by the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas appears to be declining, according to Brian Galuardi of the Bank's staff.

He wrote in the Bank's monthly newsletter that an April survey showed 1.7% of the farmers with commercial bank loans went out of business during the 6 months ended March 31, 1983. This is down considerably from the estimated 3.6% during the last 6 months of 1982, and is well below the expectations of bankers in the January 1983 survey.

These results indicate there were fewer farm failures in the first quarter of 1983 than in the third quarter of 1982, Galuardi concluded.

He attributed the improvement in farmers' financial positions to heavy participation in the Payment in Kind (PIK) program and recent increases in prices for some crops and livestock. Galuardi noted that farmers par-

Participating in PIK are expected to spend less money this year on operating costs and inputs, thus saving money later on another year.

The bankers also expect fewer farm failures, Galuardi added. He said bankers predicted in April that 2.6% of their farm customers would liquidate a significant amount of assets in the second quarter. This is considerably lower than the January prediction by bankers that 3.6% of their farm customers would liquidate assets in the first quarter.

Allen Signs 10-Year Lease To Operate Ft. Worth Stockyards

Allen operated the facility from November, 1981 through November of 1982 under a one-year agreement. "Because the arrangement worked so well, we've negotiated a long-term lease with Mr. Allen," French said. French further explained that Allen has helped in streamlining the stockyards operation, making it more efficient in handling the current volume of livestock. Under the 10-year lease agreement, all of the actual livestock facilities, with the exception of the Livestock Exchange Building, will be run by Allen. "We won't be changing the auction or marketing schedule," according to Allen. "Hog sales will take place five days a week, Monday through Thursday, and the cattle auctions will be twice a week, Monday and Tuesday," he said.

Special Sales, a large-scale auction concept initiated 28 years ago at the Fort Worth Stockyards, will be held eight times a year. The Special Sales have become a trademark of the Fort Worth Stockyards, still attracting buyers and producers from many parts of the southwest. Allen explained the Special Sales are held the last Thursday of every month May through November, with an additional one scheduled in December or January. Although the Special Sales don't parallel the volume traded years ago, Allen acknowledges, the auction will be counts for sales of a healthy three to four thousand head of Angus, Hereford and crossbreeds each month during the season.

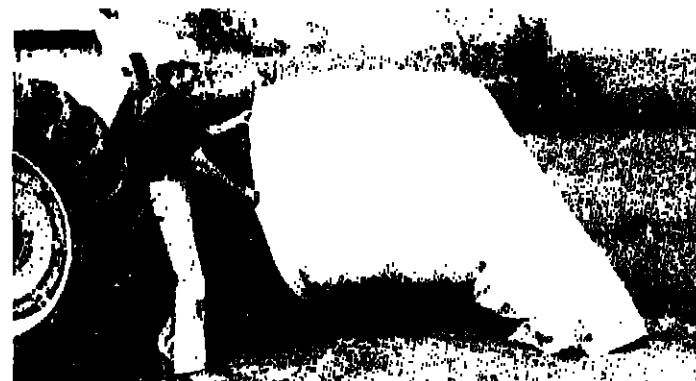

In light of the extensive urban development and renovation of properties around the Fort Worth Stockyards, Allen has voiced concern that some stockyards customers felt the stockyards was phasing out of the livestock business. To the contrary, Allen said the stockyards will run the livestock auctions just as long as they can maintain the business.

Robert Hunt, executive vice president of United Stockyards Corporation, echoes Allen's feelings. "With the signing of a 10-year lease, we're committed to the principle of actively promoting the central public markets concept." What's more, he said, the Fort Worth Stockyards will remain a viable livestock marketplace for years to come. Hunt concluded.

United Stockyards Corporation is a Chicago based firm. It owns 11 central public livestock markets and is the largest owner and operator of public livestock markets in the United States.

Stuph & Thangs

(CONT. FROM PAGE 1) needlessly embarrassed by irrelevant questions about their personal habits, etc., but as we have maintained for years we feel that every time a politician opens his or her mouth they are to have a polygraph strapped on 'em for 't protection of you and me agin their double-talk and out right lies.

President Reagan created a furor when he suggested that leaks of internal information might be controlled if suspected leakers were tested and recently in this area a number of people were let go from jobs when they failed to pass the lie detector test. It just happened that these folks handled money and in their position they could have emulated the bar tender who was accused of knocking down and cheating his boss, and who claimed he did no such thing. He said "I toss the money up in the air and if it sticks to the ceiling it belongs to the boss."

One of our friends works for a business here that handles all kinds of tools and parts, quite valuable, another works in a development store. Both outfits have their inventory on computer. However, the computer read out and what is actually in the inventory never add up. It seems a lot of merchandise, tools and parts, sprout legs or hide in lunch buckets or pockets and this shrinkage is greater than the take of the professional shop lifter!

We had a friend out in the Stockyards area here in Cowtown and he was looking for someone to mind the store for him since his establishment was open long hours. He called us one day and invited me down to meet his "new man". He was tickled plumb silly with his new man we were similarly impressed. He turned out to be a ex-Navy man, fine talker and pleasant as all git out and looked like a perfect fit to meet and greet the customers. It was our friend's rule to have potential employees take a polygraph, since they would have access to the cash register.

"The next day my friend was down lower than a snake's belly. His new man had finked the polygraph. It turned out he was on probation, had a couple of DWI convictions, and was currently charged with third and was an alcoholic, to boot.

My friend operated a liquor store. Ever thine, The Edittor.

P.S. Uncle Dunk says Momma will probably get her minute minder back in to the kitchen, since a company has come out now with a telephone set which has a digital clock attached which should make him long distance calls say a pin. Dunk claims the recent quickie special session of the Texas Legislature is a perfect example of how these legislative bodies foot around. They accomplished in four days, what they had not been able to do in six months previously. Maybe all legislative sessions ort to hold in the hot summer months to encourage these folks to git a move on! — Thassall, Brothers!

"This NoTill Drill Works"

Randy Johnson, Manager of the Caroline Hunt Trust Estate Ranch in Seagoville, Texas is using the Hay Van Currie Pasture-NoTill Drill.

According to Randy, "We had dropped the no-till concept in our ranching operations because our equipment just wouldn't do the job. After using the Hay Van Currie Pasture-NoTill drill one season, we're now continuing a no-till program. I would personally recommend the drill to anyone. This drill works."

Panhandle Feedlots

Amarillo, June 24 (F-S) — Slaughter steers fully 2.00 lower, slaughter heifers 1.50 lower. Trade slow to moderate all week with local packers buying practically entire movement. Cattle continue to move into this area from Arizona, Colorado and Kansas for slaughter. Feedlots throughout this area remain current and buyers still reporting cattle falling well below grading expectations. Some feedlots will be showing increased numbers in the near future as some early cattle off of wheat pasture reach market weights. The average live weight of most cattle slaughtered in area packing plants last week was 1089 lb. compared to 1032 lb. the previous week and 1088 lb. a year ago. Sales on 42,800 slaughter steers and 13,700 slaughter heifers.

Wilson Foods Union Returning to Work

Employees of Wilson Foods Corp., the nation's largest pork processor, returned to work Monday after voting to end a three-week strike and accept new wage-and-benefits package.

Dave Thompson, public affairs director of the Oklahoma City-based firm, said employees are being brought back to work gradually through Wednesday. "It will be in shifts, in steps, if you will," he said. "We're in the process of purchasing livestock for the plants. I suspect by mid-week everyone will be back to work."

Wilson Foods workers on Sunday approved a contract negotiated with the company by the United Food and Commercial Workers union. The new contract has a base wage of $8 per hour, less than the company was paying in April when it filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws, saying the high wage scale made the firm uncompetitive.

Elimination of the excise tax on oil could free up substantial amounts of revenue and create a significant boost of new activity in domestic oil and gas exploration and production, statistics developed by IFAA show.
